The website of CID-Crime Branch is the mirror of its functioning. It will work as a knowledge bank, containing valuable information not only for law enforcement officials but also for the members of the general public. The primary aim is to provide vital input to the people about various forms of crime, including cyber crime, economic offences, human trafficking, narcotic smuggling and organized mafia. Useful suggestions have been uploaded to enlighten members of general public to initiate appropriate preventive measures against crime. I hope that the website will act as a platform of continuous interface with the members of the general public.

Suggestions to add or improve the contents are always welcome.
